Fort Langley

Rising from the mist of the Fraser River, the palisades of Fort Langley stand tall. Inside the walls, rough-hewn timber buildings recreate the rugged 1800s. See where Hudson's Bay Company fur traders mingled with California gold prospectors and hear First Nations interpreters tell century-old tales. Feel the blast of the musket fire, pan for gold dust dreams and dress up to play a historic trading boss.

8:00: Depart to Yale Historic Site

9:00: Arrive at Yale Historic Site and do a tour

Yale Historic Site

Yale, B.C. was once the largest city north of San Francisco and west of Chicago.

Originally established in 1848 as a Hudson's Bay Company trading post, Yale grew with the influx of an estimated 30,000 gold miners during the gold rush of 1858.

In the 1860's, with the construction of the Cariboo Wagon Road, Yale became the main terminal for one of the largest sternwheeler routes in North America.

The 1880's saw the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, with construction headquarters housed in Yale.

10:45: Depart to Alexandria Bridge

11:00: Arrive at Alexandria Bridge and explore

Alexandria Bridge

Alexandria Bridge Provincial Park is a small park centred around the site of the original Cariboo Wagon Road bridge over the Fraser River. The park was established in 1984. It provides both a rest stop and picnic facilities for travelers. This site has been a natural stop-over and crossing of the Fraser River since the area was first populated. Because of its small size there are limited recreational opportunities within this park. You can access the historic bridge from a trail through the day-use area.

11:50: Depart to Hell's Gate Airtram

12:00: Arrive at Hell's Gate Airtram

Hell's Gate Airtram

Enjoy the fully suspended gondola as it passes over the most treacherous section of the Fraser River, Hells Gate. This section of the river was named after Simon Fraser's voyage in 1808, stating in his journal that "no man should ever pass through here it was truly like passing through the Gates of Hell!"

While visiting, walk across the suspension bridge, take a few snapshots, then go back and view the river from many observation decks. Water levels are known to rise up to 100 feet in the spring reaching record heights of 209 feet deep. That is over 200,000,000 gallons of water every minute raging through a narrow rock canyon just over 100 feet wide. In our village we have an educational center with videos, the history of the railways and information about the lives of the spawning salmon. Hells Gate is home to massive fish ways constructed to assist the millions of salmon that pass through annually enroute to their spawning grounds.

Tuckkwiowhum Heritage Village

A First Nations heritage site and village, Tuckkwiowhum (Tuck-we-ohm) is located 5 km south of Boston Bar. The area was given its name by local First Nations people, known as a “great berry picking place”.

The rolling hills still boast lush forests with wild huckleberries, blueberries and medicinal plants.

Tuckkwiowhum Heritage Village was inspired by local First Nations desire to preserve and share the deep spiritual connection to the land and the teachings of the Nlaka’pamux people. The site offers guests an opportunity to experience the Nlaka’pamux (Ing-la-kap-ma) village lifestyle before the arrival of European culture, including a subterranean pit house, summer lodges, smokehouse and replicas of actual pictographs found in Nlaka’pamux territory. Whether you’re looking for a peaceful weekend getaway, a quick stop on the way through the canyon, or to immerse yourself in our rich lifestyle and culture, you’ll find what you’re looking for at Tuckkwiowhum.

Lytton Chinese History Museum

Celebrated their Grand Opening on May 13th, 2017, prior to 1881, a temple was built as a focal point for all the Chinese in the Lytton area. It served as a guest house, community meeting space, and place of religion. Kwan Yin, the Goddess of Mercy, and Shen Nong, the God of Agriculture, were among the deities honoured there. The Lytton Chinese History Museum is a reconstruction of the 1881 Chinese Temple. Although not a functioning temple, it is a respectful of the religious significance of the earlier temple and includes an altar and area for study and meditation.

Historical displays bring recognition to the early Chinese influence in Lytton and the Fraser and Thompson Canyons, and create a greater awareness of the historic links between the Chinese community, the First Nations community and other local residents.

Quesnelle Forks Historic Site

Quesnelle Forks is a ghost town near Likely BC, located at the confluence of Quesnel and Cariboo rivers. At its peak over a hundred of years ago, there were several hundred people living there, most of them seeking gold in the nearby area. As years went by, as gold fever passed, and as the river swallowed much of the real estate, Quesnelle Forks was abandoned, and its buildings started to decay. In recent years, it has become a local historic site, with several well-restored (albeit mostly empty) buildings. This very place, a long time ago, hundreds of people lived and many died pursuing their golden dreams.

Barkerville Historic Town & Park

British Columbia's central interior has been profoundly shaped by gold thanks to a simple, working-class English prospector named William 'Billy' Barker who, in 1862, spearheaded a twenty-year, multi-billion dollar industrial revolution that literally helped build a Province.

Today, the extraordinary town of Barkerville (named in Billy's honour) still stands as testament to BC's golden beginnings. With a unique streetscape of 125+ heritage buildings, authentic displays, satellite museums, restaurants, shops and accommodations there is still so much to explore. Declared a National Historic Site of Canada in 1924 and a Provincial Heritage Property in 1958, Barkerville is now the largest living-history museum in western North America, where exciting seasonal events and fun-filled daily activities await.
